

Warren Klein

Born on his father's ranch in Kerr County, Warren Klein has continued that tradition his entire life. His father came to Kerr County in 1896 and homesteaded property that would eventually become the family ranch. In this story, Klein, 92, talks about his life out on the Divide where he ranches on 6,000 acres and runs cattle and goats. He also served as a hunting guide for game hunters and recalls fondly some of the many guests he's had over the years. He recalls floods and droughts over the years and talks about various families who lived out on the Divide.
